Newsletter 19 - 22nd March 2019

We celebrated World Book Day on Tuesday of this week and what a variety of amazing costumes we had in school! Some of the photos are below. Children in Owls and Eagles shared the poetry book 'The Carnival of the Animals' and listened to the music by Saint Saens. They then worked in groups to create some beautiful animal art work, and since then have been working hard writing some animal poetry. Examples of art work and writing will be on display in the entrance hall very soon.

On Thursday we had a surprise visit from two lambs. Thank you very much to Mr and Mrs Yates, Oscar and Seth who brought them in, talked to the children about farming and answered all the many questions from the children.

It has come to our attention that our 'green line' outside school has become so faint that it is barely visible. We have repainted this a golden colour and would like to remind parents that no children should cross the line when leaving school without an adult. In addition to this, we also politely request that no dogs are on the school premises please.

A few changes have been made to the timetable in the summer term. We will not be swimming on a Thursday and have planned for a group to visit Forest School each week. In addition to this Madame Collier will be teaching Eagle Class french every other week and Min Robertson will lead a session for Owl and Eagle children on mindfulness and Tai Chi.

There's lots of support available and it's a really lovely team of people to work with. Perhaps a Grandparent would like to get more involved?
